BIO:

Ricardo Weewer started as a professor of fire service science at the Fire Service Academy (IFV) in the Netherlands in 2014 as a full time professor. He is in charge of the research for the fire service in the full width of subjects regarding the fire service (e.g. organization, culture, volunteer ship, firefighting, rescue, hazardous materials).

His view is that the research should be practical and participative, which means with and for the fire service practitioners. Before he became a professor, he worked as an officer in Amsterdam Fire service, (since 2004 as a DCFO) and he did his PhD at the Delft University of Technology on Fuel cells.
